PREFACE

The process of compiling a list of the doctoral dissertations in business education was started almost thirty years ago—in 1946—when a preliminary bibliography of the research in typewriting was compiled. Since that time, there has been an almost continual search for and classification of reports of research in business education. This ongoing study of investigations in business education has culminated in the publication of a number of research indexes, the latest of which is the Index to Research in Business and Office Education, which was published by the McGraw-Hill Book Company in 1974.

This Index to Doctoral Dissertations in Business Education is based on listings and summaries of doctoral studies as they appear in such major publications in the field of business education as: Balance Sheet, Business Education Forum, Business Education Index, Business Education World, Delta Pi Epsilon Journal, Eastern Business Teachers Association Yearbook, Journal of Business Education, National Association for Business Teacher Education Bulletin, National Business Education Quarterly, and United Business Education Association Forum. Using such publications as source documents may have resulted in the omission of those doctoral studies that were never reported in print or were never summarized in one or more of the major business education publications. In order to avoid such omissions, a list was prepared and sent to each university where doctoral studies were completed, asking for corrections. The replies received from the universities provided information that was used to improve the completeness and accuracy of the Index.

Complete information concerning each doctoral dissertation was written on a 3 x 5 card. The cards, arranged in alphabetical order, formed the basis for Part I of the Index. Additional cards for each study were prepared, showing the subjects dealt with, the university where the study was completed, and the year of completion. These cards, also arranged in alphabetical order, supplied the information presented in Parts II, III, and IV of the Index.

For the most part, the subjects assigned the various investigations were based on the titles of the investigations. Summaries of certain studies also were read to verify the subject classifications.

It is obvious that in a publication of this sort, there are many, many opportunities to make errors. A sincere and diligent effort was made to eliminate all errors by double checking and triple checking the data presented. In spite of these efforts, errors of omission and commission no doubt have been made. It is hoped, however, that the Index will be a valuable tool for those people interested in studying the doctoral research that has been done in business education.
